to Get Evidence.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., June 22.—Identity of a ship that ignored a distress call sent out by the Diamond Shoals Lightship and which passed in the sea lane near the disabled steamship Carroll A. Deering, off the North Carolina coast, is now sought by Government bureaus as a clue of possible value in clearing up the disappearance of a number of cargo vessels along the coast off Cape Hatteras.

Marine records all over the world are to be examined and ships' logs will be compared in an endeavor to find the name or whereabouts of this vessel. Its identity must be established as one of the first steps in searching for a solution to the missing ships matter. Officials may learn about this vessel after they check up on all vessels that passed along the coast off Cape Hatteras. All vessels that pass the lightships are recorded. The vessel failed to answer the Diamond Shoals signal, but it may be possible to clear this up through comparison of the logs on file in the offices of the marine companies.

The admiralities of other nations are understood to be cooperating in the search. Practically all shipping companies have also been requested to give the fullest information possible. What officials seek to learn first are the facts disclosed by logs of all vessels that passed around Cape Hatteras between January 20 and February 1.

Between these dates the several cargo steamships disappeared. Marine reporting and insurance companies also will be asked to aid. Officials said this search of all marine records ought to establish without much difficulty whether an oil burning ship passed that part of the coast between the dates named.

NEW YORK POLICE KNEW OF PLOT TO SEIZE SHIPS

The New York Police Department reported to the United States authorities at Washington more than a year ago details of what looked like a plot on the part of some Russians in this country to seize American ships at sea and run them through to Russian ports.

A report of numerous secret meetings at which the plans of a group of Russians were discussed was written by Sergt. James J. Gogan, commanding the bomb squad. It was turned over to the Department of Justice in the early part of 1920.

The information came to the police from a man who had attended several of the meetings of the leaders of an organization known as the Union of Russian Workers of the United States and Canada.

The police informant was turned over to Sergt. Gogan and to him he related the story of several meetings of Russian workers which he had attended. He supplied the names of the leaders in the movement to seize the ships and the addresses of the places where the meetings had been held.

According to the man's story the leaders of the group proposed to utilize every Russian ex-soldier, navy or merchant marine, in the United States. At the time the Shipping Board was advertising for men to man its vessels, and it was the leaders' idea to have the organization's men apply for the jobs. The Russians were to concentrate on a few ships and, if possible, see to it that they outnumbered the Americans in the crews.

Various subterfuges were to be used in "packing" the crews. Men were to make special request for berths on a certain ship, giving their excuse for wanting employment in its crew the fact that a "cousin" was on board. In that way they would be certain to avoid the chances of their number being dispersed through the fleet and thus make harmless.

Whether the scheme worked, or whether any Russians got jobs with their "cousins" is not known at Police Headquarters.

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Department of Justice officials said to-night they would communicate with their New York office and with Detective Sergeant U. T. Gogan, chief of the Bomb Squad, to obtain all available information on the reported seizure over a year ago from United States waters of the United States and Canada of documents containing plans for capture of American ships and their diversion to Russian ports.

Raid upon Communist organizations in November, 1919, and in May, 1920, officials added, had netted tons of documents, revealing many radical plans, but there were no schemes for the seizure of American ships, so far as they could recall.

ENGINE TROUBLE HALTS TWO.

Sawied and Summerleaf Have Reported as Disabled.

BOSTON, June 22.—Shipping Board officers here received word to-day of machinery trouble encountered by two of its vessels. The Sawied, New York for Spanish ports, reported herself disabled at sea with engines out of order and feed pumps not working.

The Conchatta, Baltimore for Manchester, was said to be on the way to assist her.

The Summerleaf, Norfolk for Havre, arrived at Halifax, N. S., this morning, to correct engine troubles developed en route. The Sawied left on June 15 and the Summerleaf on June 18.

'MEN OF BOWERY' RAISE $50 FOR FOSTER FUND

Set Pace for $50,000 Endowment for Mission.

Men of the Bowery "set the pace" by raising $50 for the Stephen C. Foster memorial fund at a meeting and concert in Bowery Mission last evening, preliminary to a campaign to raise $50,000 for the endowment of the Bowery Mission broad line.

Harold Vincent Milligan, organist of the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church, and Foster's biographer, sketched briefly the composer's career as one of the outstanding figures in "Three Centuries of American Music." Miss Olive Nevins of Pittsburgh sang three groups of songs, embracing that period and including three selections, "The Rose," "The Woodpecker" and "Nocturne," the work of her cousin, Ethelbert Nevins. The men of Bowery Mission have set $1,000 as their quota of the memorial for the composer of "Swanee River" and "My Old Kentucky Home," who spent the last years of his life in a Bowery lodging house. The formal solicitation of funds will begin July 4, the ninety-fifth anniversary of Foster's birth.

FISHERMEN GRAPPLE FOR LOST AIRPLANE

Unable to Bring Up Object
Sunk in Hudson River Near Poughkeepsie.

PAINT GIVES THEM CLUE

Believe It Is Machine That Disappeared With 'Ace'
Two Years Ago.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 22.—Apparatus more powerful and efficient than is available here must be used if the mysterious object discovered at the bottom of the Hudson yesterday is to be raised to the surface. James Simpson and Irving Bayless, the Hyde Park fishermen who reported the object and their suspicion that it is the airplane that vanished with Capt. Mansell R. James, the Canadian ace, two years ago, failed to-day in their efforts to raise it. They were rewarded, however, by the recovery of a bit of green paint rubbed off the sunken wreckage by their ropes. To-night they are convinced the wreck of the airplane and the body of the missing aviator are on the bed of the river.

The fishermen let down their ropes this afternoon and were prepared to utilize jacks capable of lifting 5,000 pounds. They were unable to obtain a firm grip on the wreckage. Several times they lifted part of it to within a few feet of the surface, only to have it slip from the ropes and disappear.

Col. Burr, chief of the river and harbor division of the United States Army for the southern district of New York, said to-day that he will begin an investigation of the mystery, and if it is found that the wreckage interferes with navigation in any way he will send divers down to dislodge it.

GIVE FAREWELL DINNER FOR GEN. SUMMERALL

First Division Men and Legion
Are the Hosts.

Major-Gen. Charles P. Summerall of the United States Army, commander at Camp Dix, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given at Rover's restaurant at Brighton Beach by the New York city branch of the Society of the First Division and the Lieut. Jefferson Feltz Post of the American Legion. The dinner was a farewell to Gen. Summerall, who has been assigned to the Hawaiian Islands and will leave soon.

The speakers included John G. Emery, who served as a Major of the Eighteenth Infantry in France and who made his first speech as the new national commander of the American Legion. He eulogized his predecessor, Col. F. W. Galbraith and declared the Legion was an idea, a projection into civil life of the spirit that actuated the American Expeditionary Forces in 1917 and 1918.

LIGHTNING KILLS REGATTA SPECTATOR

Strikes Poughkeepsie Resident on East Side Pier.

POUGHKEEPSIE, June 22.—John Gaeta, 39, of this city, was killed instantly while watching the intercollegiate regatta here this afternoon when he was struck by a bolt of lightning in the storm which passed over the river during the freshman race.

A companion, Tony Snow, 17, was knocked unconscious, but was resuscitated. They were standing on a dock at the east side of the river when the bolt struck.
